Have a pre selection for an automatically transfer / deactivate license when closing SolidWorks

As allowed in the licence agreement it is possible for me to install the SolidWorks software on two computers. In earlier days I used the dongle at my keys to make sure I will not forget the dongle. As the activation concept was introduced in Europe it was fine for me, because I could activate on two computer (office & home office). Now by changing the concept to activate on only one computer I am afraid to forget to deactivate the licence in the home office and not to be able to activate the office licence next day.

Solution:

1. Automatically transfer the licence when closing SolidWorks

Option:

1. Have a checkbox in the options to have this permanent / on request / never

The enhancement would ease up the whole thing for me and avoid loss of time and money (travel back to the home office to deactivate and travel back again to the office to activate and work).

Optional having a choice in the options to cover e.g. laptop users without internet access.
